

Prior to the time Indiana enacted its telephone privacy law, my evenings were extremely frustrating. I work hard all day, and I highly value my privacy and time at home. Since the law was passed, I have receive only 2 "rogue" calls, and the quality of my evening family life has improved tremendously. Please, please do not pass legislation that weakens what we have in Indiana. Our telephone privacy law is exemplary, and I do not wish to see federal legislation that removes some of its teeth.
